Poems

- Brian Edwards

A candelabra
glowing
in a shadowy place a shooting star
up in the sky
a white dove
in a morning field some places of peace
quiet and wonder can still be found one need not look far and wide one need but eyes to see what is often passed over by those distracted
by the worldly masquerade

Sitting
in this
messy apartment staring
at the walls
with a blank expression
with nothing left to proclaim I carry no more
destain I carry no more
aggression
towards anything I released it
let it float away
all the way out to the Sun to be incinerated
in the endless fire

The wind
of the shadows collides with
the wind
of the bright light in a small village that exist only
what season it is here now
may be different from what season it is there
two places separated by the physical and the imagined
I can feel
the wind
of both places I cannot feel
the celestial winds
full of stardust yet I can imagine it
so well

There are orchids growing in fields
once made desolate
by war now little is heard but for the singing of birds
where at one time gunfire
and artillery
once made such a symphony of calamity

Someday
we'll breathe
the free air again
we'll go far away from the rumblings
of civilization
salvation
will be the sweet escape
to the wilderness
at night
a bright Full Moon
will remind us of all of our longings

What is it
I see
high above
the trees they don't want us
to know they think we shouldn't know yet pay your taxes on time or they'll give you
a big damn fine

Didn't go to work today I just didn't have it in me
a few of the bosses
may complain about lost profits
I shed
no tears
for lost profits

The silence
of the streets
when it's early that's where you'll find it sometimes
that which you felt was missing

The big madhouse
has no walls and no doors let that sink in and what is the implication
the implication is they haven't been telling you
the truth
about the place where you really are

Sonnets
and bonnets hawks and wolverines
make anything of what you will with what you can for they are taking you for every nickel and dime you may have to spare they don't care
whoever they are they've always been a real bunch of shits like that

It is as
it's always been a cycle
of wind
a feather dropped from a bell tower when these last few nights I felt
the telepathy
of the stars knowing
a vast dreamworld
is awaiting tonight
as its always been things seen with the eyes
and the imagination

- 5/10/2026

The stars
like diamonds
the Moon
like something else
early morning
rain hitting the streets
the world
is out there waiting for me
to play a part I try to play along yet the same song and dance is getting old
to me
the stars
are like diamonds at this very moment

This place
is full of bitter division as out there in the night
the wolves howl
the jackals prowl
and the owls on their tree branches are thinking about Wittgenstein
is full of too much senseless chatter ramblings
of futility diatribes
of the delusional
for myself I prefer to hear
and perhaps a little something about Wittgenstein
from owls

When I started
to assume that it all was a big damn lie my understanding of things
cleared like a bright blue sky in Wyoming

- 5/11/2026

Remember
that hour remember
that day when all
the geese
around here
up and flew away
and so
the songs of their journey
to this day

- 5/11/2026

Go and see the eternal tree
in truth
it looks like any other tree
though the elders say it's not they say
it's an eternal tree so go on and see

- 5/11/2026

You make the money they take
such is the world
and its endless stream of contradictions and ironies thus we move along thus we sing
the mariner's song
thus we bid you adieu landlubber with your fancy pair of shoes

That dimly lit eastern horizon shortly before the Sunrise
one of my favorite things to see
soon the new day will arrive and I will be cast into the abyss
of my day job soon I will have to go and where I go
there will be gnashing of teeth where I go
diminishing enthusiasm in my imagination
I will hear the tolling
of a bell it tolls for me
it is the last bell of a fading era soon
something different will await me what it will be
I cannot say

So I behold
the radiance
of a vision that is absolute
in its ethereal mystical wondrous splendid form and nature
and the hidden essence of the world whispered
into my ear what it said was just for me
so I shall keep quiet about it
there's no use in blabbering about it
in getting drunk and blabbering
at my own discretion
I wander
about this world that both stings
and pleases that is like
a dark orchid
a red rose

We are passing through the fog of the times rattlesnakes
and wind chimes bring to us an ominous chill
we dance
the danse macabre
we build catapults
out of birch and cedar we'll hurl
some stones at castle walls they should have listened to us
yet they never do those within those castle walls
always thought themselves beyond the reach of catapults
they're learning a harsh lesson now our birch and cedar catapults are the best we build them
with the skill of the bitter
and the determined

- 5/12/2026

find thee
a shadow
of the Moon
to keep with you always in a keepsake locket
of the mind it shall be genuine and it shall be true for the Moon has always been a place
of the solitude we wish for

- 5/12/2026

Today at work was like a big pile of manure and I'm here
that tomorrow I'll be going back to endure some more
I hope that
someday
I get myself free yet I know that for now there's plenty more days like manure

- 5/12/2026

I was waiting for the doves to return yet I could only see the bats
of the twilight
such is the progression of a tale full of much absurdity
living breathing hoping praying to what to whom for what reason does it matter
you've found
are the bats

- 5/12/2026

of the
that is a silence
you will long remember with all of the cacophonies
that await you
out there
in the industrialized world
of corporate expansion in a world with little sense of placement in the Universe
the memory

A season
of light
a season
of shadow
I walk
down streets
with the shadow
I drink beer and smoke
cigarettes
I wanted little and got nothing I asked for nothing and got the shadow
I was awake while the world was asleep they could not see what I could see they were in the season
of light
while I was in the season of the shadow

in the sky they've never told me a lie they are what they are they represent what they represent and the Moon is under the horizon now
the Moon
a lie
often sends me dreams of its beautiful solitude
in valleys
and canyons of ancient Moon dust upon the surface
some traces of humanity
these traces amidst a serene solitude and beyond
the stars
the stars

can crack like an eggshell
just as many things
can and do I'm now attempting to wake myself up with coffee
there are things
out there
in the world
I must attend to were it not so yet it is my own mind
has cracked
many times
the world
of storm winds that take many forms with age this eggshell
of a mind has weakened
often throw me about I sometimes sing into
the melody
is cast about sent flying
in all directions
towards the cities towards the mountains towards the forest and in the direction
of the sea  - 5/13/2026

The day
is over let it be the night
has fallen
not much to see dark forest dark streets falling asleep waking up
we go through it all again over and over the cycle
continues until it ends

Here at five
in the morning
feeling
half-asleep half-alive
half in the sky
half out to sea
no longer
looking for lost dreams looking instead for ones
I can keep for awhile
like a tide
I get brought in then pulled back out through a window in a house of cards I'm simply trying to get where I need to go
if I need to go anywhere I'm not so certain of a lot

They are still building
golden idols here what can I say about it
it's a time when madness is simply in the wind
we're not doing enough
soul-searching here what have we got for all our troubles now perhaps they want us
to worship
a golden idol
they will print more money for us
from their printing machines
I wait
for no man the bell
never tolls
sometimes
there's nothing
but the laughter
sometimes
there's nothing
but the tears
sometimes
the Christmas lights are still there in the middle of summer

No more shall I behold that isle
in the blue sea of night
the isles
where I journey to these days
are more asphalt and stone than sand and soil and I have not seen a blue sea
of night
in many years
of it is faded
yet not gone completely yet it is gone
and the isles
of asphalt are still here
I go to them often while conducting business
sometimes
I look upon
the ocean
to see if it's a glowing blue like I saw
a long time ago
it never is though I know I'll continue looking

- 5/14/2026

Seek and find
find and follow follow and be free for thee
for thine
for thou
what a strange
hour it is
for thine
the tree of wisdom
the light of vision
the wine that takes memory away

- 5/14/2026

In both
lost gardens
and gardens found we'll feel the essence of memory
flow through us the Sun will be
as a golden radio
we shall awaken
to the prospect of eternity
in good time our thoughts
shall drift away to the stars they'll be waiting for us up there
upon worlds where its always dawn

***

Violets singing to Venus
and Saturn Orchids
singing to Gemini roses singing to Cassiopeia
and Andromeda
upon a tall pillar
in the desert
a stylite sings
to the night wind

Walking
a thin line climbing an old vine where have I got to go but back down
the rabbit hole
in a dream
the true light
the radiant night
the fire
that burns
like ice
the roll of the dice
now or never I need to feel
some meaning again
never it is an awakening still stuck
yet sometimes it's preferable to the world around lost in the lamplight
salvation
in the stained glass
in the attic light shining
the window

- 5/15/2026

Of fog
of wine
of things composed
take me across the boundary to the enchanted side
of things
I wish to know what it's all about the faint laughter
and singing
heard in the radio ocean
I walk along ramparts of shells looking upon the azure sky

- 5/16/2026

Out in the forest
I knew the day and the hour
sea of time there before
my eyes
a landscape of long memory I wandered into places
a different era
a different sky brightened
by the Sun
back when

- 5/17/2026

The shadows of vines
in the twilight our Sun shall soon yield
its radiant light
to the faint light of distant Suns Suns that rise and set on different worlds than our own Suns that mingle their light with the sands
of distant deserts giving rise to mirages
that fool the eyes of wanderers on worlds
not our own
there to see it as I do
a vast cosmic sea of cosmic light
of cosmic brightness
and all
that it brings to the soul

For we know
that they are fond of idols
of gold
that their idols do not have a true shine
if they shine
at all
that their proclamations are full of villainy
that their villainy
is motivated
by the worship
gold can fill
the mind
with idolatrous visions of gold often seek a material form
is brought into this world

- 5/17/2026

a believer
in what the dream reveals a thousand islands waiting
for me
an enchanted place in the mountains where land mingles with sky and at times the boundary becomes no boundary
in what yet isn't and what yet could be I behold
an eagle in flight
I behold
a crystalline sea in crystalline Moonlight
I behold
what in this world convinces me
to be a great believer in the dream itself
and all
it reveals

- 5/19/2026

My shadow
does seek a place
to belong and an hour when the world seems welcoming I choose the Pines at dawn the sandy trails where I find the closest that I believe
of an immaculate morning
where my shadow belongs and my soul finds sanctuary
in this silence

- 5/19/2026

Seek you
to find what the night
can give a tapestry that hides more than it reveals an ocean
of stars that holds
the memory
of all creation what you seek out there
is for you and only you
to find alone

- 5/19/2026

They said
that this was a golden age whoever said this was no kind of sage in truth
they were
a speaker
whose words were full of air
yet some still believe it while others did not care and those who did not care grew larger in number while those who still believed looked all around for the promised gold

- 5/19/2026

Free us from the illusions
of the age
so many
so many
we're living in a big cage yet who owns the big cage ?

- 5/19/2026

Working
the lousy job to get by when just getting by is no piece of the pie and someday we'll forget what the pie even was
as big yachts go by out in the harbor

- 5/19/2026

These hot days of May the heat a little early some would say though others would be impartial and here I am sitting next to the fan
the night
is a hot one I saw a raccoon crossing the road on my drive home
is in its crescent phase aligned with Venus or Jupiter
one of the two I'm not sure

- 5/19/2026

Someday
it'll be over the grueling drudgery
that seems so pointless so without much reward
someday
the wind
will spin a weathervane
and a pinwheel
out on somebody's front lawn when my drudgery
two birds will sit side by side on a telephone wire early
someday

- 5/19/2026

So it begins anew another day of the commercialized ceremony we hear of things regarding numbers and value
I seek no philosophy here
I seek philosophy
at night
when the sky is clear and bright stars
adorn the heavens tell me what you wish for that I may know your wishes perhaps we may bring some of them to fruition
the hourglass
will reveal to us is this will be so
and we shall await as time passes
like a leaf drifting

- 5/16/2026

The serpent sings
a telepathic song
in a desert
where an orchid in Moonlight is often thought of I wish to see a scenery which is beyond all expectation
I wish to hold and keep in my heart the wish to behold
an eternal dawn

- 5/16/2026

Gazing
into a cauldron of celestial fire formless gas
and the essence of elemental creation I am wandering
in a desert
of the
clairvoyant scorpion he follows me seeking to possess
my dreams
he will not sting me for I am one who was already damned

- 5/16/2026

By Moonlight
I wandered
into a dreamlike mist
as if I were crossing over a threshold
where the world
that is the most true and real may be found and there did I find it
in a mist that was like a dream

Old flower pots
full of dirt and nothingness
out on my balcony I have no plans to grow anything
my ambitions
are limited to floating away up to the clouds escaping
the day job once and for all when I am gone someone will eventually move in and clear out
the old flowerpots
on my balcony
I had no ambitions
with those
so it is no great matter at all

- 5/16/2026

Off the cliff
we go
let this example show don't let the greed get out of hand or you'll end up with a wasteland
more than a promised land

- 5/15/2026

Into dark caves of solitude
I will go to escape that old familiar cacophony
of a world
unhinged

What a mistake
it was one that I will carry with me throughout my life like a scar
like a wound never fully healed
it was
my mind
was rather delusional back then too willing to accept the words of strangers with not much of a worldly perspective
at all
I was swept up in the sensationalism of many things
my excuses
will not go very far I found myself making a terrible mistake thus so it is my scar and I are one

and pondering
where
the candles glow
each flame
burns in remembrance of something
my mind
is a fountain of many memories far too many memories
I often lose my bearings
in the sea
of time
walking
over memories
pouring forth from my mind would that this were a fountain
pouring forth wine then could I
perhaps
diminish the intensity of reliving moments
events occurrences again and again
and I ponder where the candles glow

Seek a thing
that is
most sensible a rare thing an oddity it would be considered in these times
if you find such a sensible thing treat it like gold as we are told that gold is the thing to achieve
as it has made us
such a great society without much that is sensible the sensible is an oddity here after all

Canoeing
in a dream
down the river of time grabbing hold of the vine
that takes me to a vineyard divine and O' that tasty wine I'll drink it and feel fine for awhile until I awaken from my dream
back to this reality and suddenly
I scream

We shall know when it is time the heavens shall send down messengers
the birds flying about over a new fallen snow where should I go where should I be to receive the good news
that all the world may hear when shall I know the hour
when shall
I hear
those trumpets from high in the blue sky when a new snow has fallen

The things
to hear
the music
of wind
when the Equinox
has arrived
when we have gone another year are we any wiser would you say is truth
bestowed upon us are we as those who recognize
the stars
as old friends when we see them
through the seasons of our lives
has arrived
when our words
take flight
in the sky
as the sparrows do
the wind
shall bring us
the music
we have waited a long time

And so
we go and search for a dream
when the hour
is as a blazing emerald so we go and search for that which made us believe so passionately at one time
is it still there or has it faded in cold winds of a neglectful
we shall find or we shall not find the story is ours to rediscover
and to bring to an end in fairer winds
full of longing

at a lousy gig
by night
I swig
the beer bottle
and smoke
my share of the essence of blissful forgetting

Knowing that tomorrow
will be a day of toil
I rest here upon the soil and gaze up upon the star-dotted sky
of infinity

True and bright upon a Byzantine night by lamplight
out on the terrace reading a scroll of an ancient soul
the stars above
over Byzantium
tonight

Slicing
invisible apples in the air
with my blade boredom shall not cause me
to stray from a very old Hermetic way of believing I shall listen to the birds sing and recognize their ballads
of the mother star

Steal the time away that has yet to be forgotten yet will most assuredly be forgotten steal that time away
never going to consider it a sacred time yet you have the ability to make it such a thing let them dance and build ballrooms it is spectacle they crave
not so much the substance
of lasting memory not even so much
of a thing
they crave spectacle and thoughts that are lighter than air
steal that time away from them
seize the hourglass from their grasp speak your wishes to the grains of sand
ever falling into the past

Speak you
of a thing
as fallen snow
and snow falling and snow
yet to fall
speak you
this is so this is to be realized this is to be awakened from within as those dreams of clear night skies and of stars speak to you
of a thing
time itself may drift and change direction
be not one that is asleep and dreaming
be one who is awake
and full of dreams of the fire
of the soul

We drift nowhere
and nowhere
we drift
as idols glare
in the spring Sun
for we are nowhere
in the sea
of moments
we drift
in this place
that is nowhere

The soul
drained out
of me
by the long day at work
the feeling that I've been
in this
same building
for a thousand years and that I'll probably be here for a thousand more realizing that so many hours days weeks months
years have been spent
in this
the world
has gone by for some people it has gone by and gotten worse
I wonder how much soul
there is even left in me
to be drained out to make money to pay the bills snd maybe a case of beer
on the weekends

The brightness of celestial candles
up there do you behold the vastness
of creation when I gaze
up there
at such a sight
my mind
drifts away from worldly
concerns
from worldly
places
up there
each star
seems to me a window through which
a little bit
a grassy field a coastline a forest
mountains in a realm
of eternity

in the land of disillusion living in a time of con artist and grifters
what is one to do when the flowers have withered
when disillusion grows from the soil
like a plague
of Venus Fly Traps
grifters
have commandeered
the podiums
speaking the gibberish that means
very little in the imaginary
which means
very little
in the world
of the big grift
the big grift
all to celebrate or at least stay very quiet about

Now is the time
the dawn of the sparrow
of the arrow shot at the Sun now is not the time of the gun no one will win in that folly
it is a time
when the mirror
only reflects
a shadow
when we may enter into a dream
from a reflection
in a pond
of wondrous possibilities
the world
had only forgotten as in its vanity
it often forgets

When the stars
were brighter when the streetlights had a little more glow to their essence when a zeal was still there to fill the soul those were the days when you truly felt alive without even realizing it those were the days when a fire burned within you driving you on into the blazing mad looking twilight towards the ocean
of stars
beyond

A shadow
upon the plateau the cold ground touched by distant starlight for a million years
what can
we believe in again what is even possible to believe in now long days of diminishing light yield to long days
of night
so fulfilled
in darkness can you feel the embrace
the silence
of the early morning hours
here is a dominion of separation between the world and the eternity
of stars
that surrounds us always

Star
of my hour
thy light is the illumination of vast time
and I may behold thy vision of fire
through whichever century I choose
star
of my hour
it is early morning
here
though the shroud of darkness
is cast
I behold
the stars
of my hour
they are of a true light
and the world
surrounding yields
to their splendor

A thread of the tapestry
there it is something of the unseen
of the hidden essence of things
the tapestry
the tapestry
through all the storms
we face
in our lives and when we look to eastern and western horizons
we know that hidden
do there await
and so we await a journey
yet to begin

I see
I see
the flame
the fire
the burning tree
I do see
yes ... I do see it well
like some vision
from a forest in Hell
at twilight
there before
my eyes

I've been here at the old station
waiting for a locomotive from over a century ago to arrive
the impossible is possible here for this is not the place
for that matter that you assumed it to be
this is a place within a jewel's reflection multiplied by three one hundred thousand hourglass
each one existing in its own place in time and I've been here waiting for
my train for a long time
yet it's all just a dream

The triumph of the darkened star is clear to all with eyes to see
many things
of the night gravitate towards
the lantern light O' that I could be up there
within a valley upon the Moon looking back down upon the much that I have lost
and the very little that I've ever found

Today
was going
I went hiking in the Pines its been six months since I've been out there
was going
yet it's been raining
on and off since yesterday Memorial Day weekend and I've no place
to go so let it rain
there's always tomorrow
that is
unless it rains

no reprieve
from the darkness
it's always there
shining over me like an Onyx Sun
yes ....
the darkness
can and does shine like an Onyx Sun
like I mentioned just like with that other Sun with the Onyx Sun
there's a dawn
of darkness
and a twilight
of darkness
with only darkness in between whether or not
it shines

Tomorrow morning
I plan
on walking away
from the civilized world I'll take a trail deep into a forest
I will keep walking until all sounds
have faded
I will go forth to places where it doesn't matter
civilization
exist at all
it won't be there it won't be where I will be
surrounded by all those trees

Like fountains pouring out
absurdity
like streetlights
glowing
with absurdity
absurdity
is all around
go far to find it in abundance

That Moonlight
was amazing
very graceful and celestially blazing full of solitary illumination shining down
and half
the nation
who don't pay no mind

That evening
the politicians
had something to say but we went on and stacked the hay despite what
had to say we knew we'd get a better deal stacking
those bales of hay

Raised from the dark depths of industry
the body is weary
the soul
is weary
yet they say we can't find lasting rest for another
fifteen years from this present time
the soul
is weary
and the days
passing by and in Autumn
the leaves are tossed about
in the wind
of industry
rolls on like a locomotive
like a steamship
and the body
is weary
the soul
is weary
and so it will be if I'm around long enough to see another fifteen years

I go on for what else
is to be done when shadows leave imprints
on the walls that is never a good sign
yet what is to be done we no longer see
the path that we have travelled we no longer
hear about promises of eternal bliss
we find ourselves beginning to question the nature
and the purpose
we hope
to find answers in the signs
are everywhere
one need only realize this to see them

To seek and find a thing that is true
that is
a fine thing yet perhaps not always the truth itself
takes no sides
it is as a stubborn mule
listen
to your commands
the truth
was born
of that place where one may find the sands of time it may be sought after sometimes
it is found
and sometimes it isn't
sometimes
to find truth is a fine thing
a splendid thing
yet only sometimes

Often
there are dreams that are not recognized as such perception loses its precise geometric boundary what is real and what is dream cannot be determined
we hear wolves
upon the hilltops
howling
yet are they even there did we truly hear anything
the answer
eludes the question we seek both
our search is in vain

These ideas of mine
sinister stars and many is the time I have stumbled upon omens
in the tall grass question not whether my words be full of truth
my language is no such chalice
the bitter
yet lovely flower
sapphire stars
as they send down
javelins
of material light towards the sea
and the mountains
these ideas of mine
are ravens
in centuries old wind ponder them or ponder them not futility is the sovereign of the hour

With these eyes
I have sought the rays of light that are divine
my purpose is reflected in clear angles in volcanic glass straight as an ocean's horizon straight outwards towards the Seven Wonders
lost in time
